in the Global Era

OVERVIEW

Universitas Islam Sultan Agung (UNISSULA) has collaborated with many universities across the globe in fostering internationalization and mutual benefit in education, research, and other areas involving the lecturers as well as the students.

One of the programs highlighted by UNISSULA is the cultural exchange program for UNISSULA students and partner universities' students. This program is intended to give opportunities for students to exchange their culture, collaborate with people with different backgrounds, and build a better understanding of how they see people from different cultures. As we know, there are many conflicts happening these days because of the lack of understanding of other cultures. Thus, this program will lead the students to have a broader perspective on they see the world and treat people from other cultures.

In addition, in this global era, youth people that learning English as their second or foreign language usually face challenges in preserving their cultural identity in this global era. They are forced to go global by mastering English, but also at the same time they have to preserve their cultural identity including their ethnic language, beliefs, and other cultural aspects. In this program, the participants are encouraged to think about the challenges and propose solutions to these challenges.
